Dear County and District Superintendents and Charter School Administrators:

Reminder of Obligation to Protect Immigrant Families' Rights to Access Public Education

All children in the United States, regardless of immigration or citizenship status, have a right to a free and appropriate public education.

In response to requests for information and support from local educational agencies (LEAs), the California Department of Education (CDE) is sharing resources to preserve access to education for students from immigrant families during times of increased fear of immigration enforcement.

According to data gathered by the Urban Institute, approximately half of California's students are members of immigrant families, in which one or more parents are immigrants. One in five children in California are members of mixed-status families, in which one or more parents are undocumented. Ninety-three percent of those students are United States citizens.

Educators across California's diverse LEAs may benefit from reviewing the resources below, which collect existing guidance about California state laws governing the protection of immigrant students and families.

- The Governor's Office has issued a new web resource that centralizes information about protecting immigrant families, especially California's many families who have mixed immigration status. This page includes relevant guidance about maintaining safe school environments, protecting student data, and providing access to mental health resources:
<https://www.ca.gov/immigration/>.
- The U.S. Supreme Court has long guaranteed that all children have a right to a free public education, regardless of immigration status, per Plyler v. Doe, 457 U.S. 202 (1982). (See <https://tile.loc.gov/storage-services/service/ll/usrep/usrep457/usrep457202/usrep457202.pdf>.)
- Every student in California has the right to attend public school in the state free from discrimination, harassment, violence, intimidation, and bullying. (California Education Code [EC] 220, 234, et seq.)

- The threat of immigration enforcement can impair the ability of many students, including those who are undocumented and those who are United States citizens, to thrive in our schools. A 2020 Harvard report¹ found pervasive fear of immigration enforcement in schools, resulting in increases in emotional and behavioral problems among immigrant students, reduced commitment to school and the idea of going to college, and increased absenteeism. Surveys found the threat of immigration enforcement affected US citizen students as well, as students worried about the fate of family members, friends, and classmates.
- Per Assembly Bill 699 (2017), schools are not to collect information about families' immigration status unless required by law and LEAs must pass policies limiting assistance with immigration enforcement at public schools. (Access the bill at https://leginfo.legislature.ca.gov/faces/billTextClient.xhtml?bill_id=201720180AB699.)
- Many school districts throughout California have passed policies, procedures, and resolutions intended to make families and students feel safe at school and to communicate to staff, students, and their families that all students have a right to attend school regardless of their immigration status. Many examples of these local resolutions exist across our state, including in the San Diego Unified School District.

- Pursuant to AB 699, in 2018, the California Attorney General's Office issued guidance to help schools promote a safe learning environment for all students and to help school officials and families respond to potential immigration enforcement:

The CDE encourages all LEAs to review and update their policies, or to adopt policies if not yet adopted, in accordance with the guidance below to ensure that they are providing safe learning environments for all students.

Specifically, LEAs should review their student enrollment, residency, and data-collection policies and practices to ensure that they comply with federal and state laws and to safeguard against inadvertently discouraging undocumented students or students from mixed-status families from enrolling in or attending school.

Staff should receive training on these policies and procedures. Staff should be advised that during the student enrollment process LEAs must verify students' ages and residency in the district. However, school districts need not and should not ask about the citizenship or immigration status of students or their parents or guardians for the purpose of establishing in-district residency.

California law further bars LEAs from collecting or soliciting Social Security numbers from students or their parents or guardians, unless otherwise required to do so by state or federal law. (EC 49076.7[b])

Further, state law directs LEA governing boards to adopt policies that limit classroom interruptions. LEAs may adopt policies that limit access to school sites and questioning of students for immigration enforcement purposes because such activities, and threats of such activities, interfere with classroom learning (EC 32212, 35160).

Together, we will ensure that all families feel welcome on our campuses and that students feel supported to attend school. An appendix of statewide resources is attached at the end of this letter for use by educators as needed and appropriate.

Sincerely,

Signed by
